

Software that does the business

The team at Triangle Software are not 'techie' IT people who speak a different language, they are business people who just happen to also know an awful lot about technology and software systems. The company provides software that works and will improve performance, productivity and profits.

At some stage in its development, almost every successful business will need to invest in software to enable both management and staff to run the business as efficiently as possible and ensure that profits are maximised.

Smart companies looking to gain a competitive edge are increasingly turning to specialist custom-made software developers who build bespoke systems specifically to meet the needs of their individual operation. Systems are created to suit any business sector or function for example, warehouse management, management of sales and orders, streamlining logistics and distribution, manufacturing processes, in fact anywhere you need to more effective or for your business to work.

Developing custom software for a business client is as much about good communication and business understanding as it is about the technical ability of the developers and their understanding of programming.

At Triangle Software this is just the case, it is an innovative and business-focused software development company that creates bespoke business systems for clients throughout the UK.

Established in 1992, the company has built its reputation over many years yet remains at the forefront of technical innovation.

Strong client relationships are a reflection of the company's success which is based as much on its understanding of the business environment as it is its technical expertise from initial planning through to continued support. Triangle Software currently work with all sizes of business and industry sector including Tarmac Ltd, the Ministry of Defence, the NHS and smaller companies such as Grimsby Fish Merchants Association and Macclesfield Town Football Club.

A certified Microsoft partner since 2000 and a Sage business partner since 2004, the company is headed up by Managing Director Tim Thomas-Peter and has a team of 11 people. The company works across a range of development environments and platforms, all of which are Microsoft based.

So if you have old systems in place, a new business start up that needs to develop a new system, or an existing company that has outgrown its software systems then call Triangle Software.

For further information

Call Tim at on 01477 571940, email info@trianglesoftware.co.uk or visit www.trianglesoftware.co.uk

